Damaris Henderson – Atlanta, GA

Damaris Henderson is the proud mother of two beautiful girls, who are 13 years apart. For the past 10 years, she has worked fulltime as the Coordinator of Outreach for SisterLove, Inc. SisterLove is a nonprofit that advocates on behalf of women's sexual and reproductive health. Damaris also owns, manages, and operates a small catering and event planning business named DAZA Events. In her spare time, Damaris serves as the co-chair of Emory's Center for AIDS Research Community Liaison Council where she shares her passion to serve her community by creating a connection between the community and researchers. Damaris is also a part of the Community Advisory Board for Emory's Women Interagency HIV Study, an artist, and a very active soccer mom. She also facilitates Healthy Love and Healthy Relationship workshops for young women that are at risk for contracting HIV. Damaris enjoys serving and educating her community because it's not enough to just talk the talk! Damaris believes she must also practice what she preaches and be an example to those coming behind her.

Jasmine Womack– Atlanta, GA

Jasmine Womack is a book publisher and consultant who teaches women how to own their voice, organize their ideas, self-publish their books, and use their books to build their business. She has helped hundreds of clients write and publish their books and develop their content for speaking, masterclasses, and online programs to expand their reach and their revenue. As a previous educator in public middle school education, Jasmine has seen first-hand how education can transform lives and change bloodlines. She enjoys helping women to own the power within themselves and encouraging women to share their stories to increase their impact and create income. She does this by speaking, coaching, and hosting training seminars and workshops. In her spare time, Jasmine enjoys relaxing with her husband and cuddling with her children under a blanket while eating popcorn and watching animated movies.

“To be an inspiring mom means that you cultivate yourself to be your best, to give your children the best of you so that they can be their best and bring out the best in others.”

Kristian Postma – Dawsonville, GA

Kristian Postma is a rising third year student at Atlanta's John Marshall Law School ("AJMLS"), the President of the Georgia Association for Women Lawyers-John Marshall Chapter, a Peer Mentor to incoming first year students, and a Legal Assistant for Wester Law, LLC. In addition to participating at AJMLS, she is an Alumnae Advisor for the Delta Zeta Xi-Xi Chapter at The University of North Georgia. Kristian's husband, Brian, is a Police Officer with the City of Alpharetta and she is a proud mother to a 2.5-year-old daughter, Blakely.

“My focus and determination come from wanting to leave a lasting impression upon my daughter and other women, that despite the timing of your pregnancy, planned or unplanned, to fulfill your dreams you must get out of your comfort zone, take a leap of faith each day, and repeat! ”

Marcia McGinnis – Dunwoody, GA

Marcia McGinnis and her husband were blessed with five children. Two babies were lost due to miscarriage and their son died when he was two days old. The deep love Marcia felt for all of her children brought her to an incredible level of grief after the loss of her babies. As she healed, Marcia began reaching out to other bereaved parents. This began her lifelong passionate mission of supporting and advocating for those in the pregnancy and newborn loss grief community. SHARE Atlanta, which Marcia cofounded in 1984, is an outgrowth of her love for babies, mothers, fathers, and families.

“I thank God for his many blessings in my life. I am greatly humbled and moved by this nomination and by the other Inspiring Mother’s stories. My motherhood and my ultimate outreach have both been gifts from God that touch and bless me every day.”

Michelle Cope – Moultrie, GA

Michelle Cope is a 39 year-old single mother of an amazing little girl named Maisie. She has worked as a certified ophthalmic assistant five days a week since 2016. Michelle is the founder of a suicide awareness ministry called The Yellow Elephant Ministries, INC. It was founded in memory of her best friend, Christina who was taken by suicide in 2012. This ministry works to educate, encourage, and support individuals dealing with depression, anxiety, mental illness, and related issues and their loved ones by creating safe environments where love, appreciation, knowledge, feelings, and thoughts can be freely shared without judgment. When Michelle is not busy being a mom, working her job or ministry, she is volunteering at church. She is currently on the prayer team, baptism team, and leads pre- teens in Sunday school two Sundays a month. She also has partnered with a friend to lead a group of 15-19 year olds on Sunday for a bible study. Michelle enjoys spending time with her wonderful boyfriend, family and friends.

“Being an inspiring mom means keeping on when you don't want to anymore. Being an inspiring mom means seeking help when needed. We all are perfectly imperfect and that is what makes us beautifully unique.”
