Amy Corn – Gainesville, GA

Amy Corn is a Maternal Mental Health Advocate. She works with mothers who are suffering with postpartum depression (PPD) and postpartum anxiety (PPA), with a focus on emotional wellbeing. She is a wife, mother of two, and a two-time survivor of both PPD and PPA.

She works and volunteers full-time promoting awareness and education about the symptoms, risk factors and treatment options for postpartum depression and anxiety. She is a Postpartum Support International (PSI) State Coordinator for Georgia, which allows her to serve as a 'bridge' to connect mothers with the appropriate resources they need. Amy also serves on the board of the PSI GA Chapter as the Volunteer Coordinator where she has the privilege of chairing the Program & Education Committee. She works with an amazing team of volunteers to create maternal mental health based programs and training opportunities for the mothers, families, and providers in our state.

Amy is passionate about the work that she does and strives to let other moms know that they are not alone, that they are not to blame for what's happening to them and that with the appropriate care they can completely recover.

"I am humbled and deeply honored to have been nominated, let alone chosen for this award. There are so many great people doing so many great things for the mother's in our state, so to be honored among them is truly a privilege."

From her Nomination: "She is a survivor of Perinatal Mood and Anxiety Disorders, and she has made it her mission to increase awareness of Maternal Mental Health and to build resources for mothers in Georgia and specifically outside in rural areas. She takes her job as a board member very seriously and is also our volunteer coordinator which helps provide more services, education and community for mothers. Amy is really a grassroots advocate for mothers."
